Vocational Scenario or Context	Liverpool Football Club (LFC) are looking for volunteers to work with local community groups and deliver football sessions as part of a new community initiative. The club have advertised for young people looking to get into coaching and who want to learn the world-leading Liverpool Way. You have been successful with your application and the club have requested some written documents as the next stage of the interview and appointment process.

Task 1	The club would like you to provide some written documents. Firstly, you should research The Liverpool Way of coaching and produce a written document that demonstrates your understanding. This document should include: • The importance of communication (types, language use, clarity etc.) • The importance of feedback (sources, methods, focused, empowering, encouraging, environmental impact, type of environment) • Different coaching theories and approaches along with the impact of these upon individual players • The Liverpool values • The Liverpool ethics • The Liverpool Way coaching principles • The LFC player development model Once produced, you should utilise The Liverpool Way to create three session plans that show clear and due consideration for the players who will be involved. These should each show how the leaning theories impact the planning process. You should ensure that you use The Liverpool Way and should flag key points within your plans to demonstrate where key aspects are included e.g. mental and social considerations. Finally, you should provide a written document that considers how The Liverpool Way is used in planning and delivering coaching sessions. You should refer to your session plans as a point of reference.

Criteria covered by this task:
